

MORE CLUES FOUND TO RIVER VICTIM

The identity of the woman whose body was found floating in the Potomac river off Mt. Vernon last Sunday, September 22, is still clouded in mystery despite the finding of what are supposed to be new clues on the bank of the river last night near where the body was found.

James Young, assistant superintendent of the Mt. Vernon estate, found a coat label marked "Marshall Field, Chicago, No. 40-3339," a torn check and a torn receipt from the Wells-Fargo Express Company.

This evidence all pointed to the theory that the woman was from Chicago, since she wore shoes marked "Marshall Field."

The Wells Fargo express ticket bore the name Mrs. J. E. Swartz, but was dated September 2, 1915, according to attendants at Wheatly's undertaking parlors, Alexandria, where the body lies.

Those who have followed the case in Fairfax and Alexandria counties were unable to explain the Fargo ticket, which bears the date of the day on which the body was found.

The body would have been buried unknown in Bethel Cemetery, Alexandria, today but for the finding of the new evidence by Young last night.

A full description of the woman and the clues have been wired to the Chicago police and burial has been postponed pending reply.

Officials of the county are confident that the articles found last night bear a connection to the unidentified woman, and expect news from Chicago momentarily. They point out that no label was found in the woman's coat.

UNCLE SAM HAS SOME GOOD JOBS TO FILL

The Civil Service Commission has just issued an announcement of a series of examinations for inspectors, rodmen, and chainmen, draftsmen, and laboratory men to take place October 21 and November 8 and 9.

The examination for rodmen and chainmen, for males only, will take place when it is necessary to fill vacancies, but applications should be sent to the commission at once.

The examinations for assistant inspectors of hull material will be held November 4. Applicants must have a practical knowledge of the testing of materials, acquired either in the testing department of steel works or in technical schools, and also a general knowledge of metallurgy of iron and steel.

Knowledge of present furnace and mill practices is also required.

Perquisites of Position.
The perquisites for the position of supervisor and assistant supervisor of grain inspection are at least nine years experience in some capacity relative to the inspection of grain.

The salaries commanded by these positions range from $2,500 to $3,500 for the supervisor, and from $1,500 to $2,500 for the assistant.

Graduation from a regular four-year high school course, and at least one year's experience in metering and measuring is required for applicants for the position of gas inspector. This position pays $1,800 per annum.

The examination will be held October 21. The examination for the position of junior draughtsman is open to graduates of a recognized school of engineering.

Applicants must have reached their thirtieth birthday by the day of the examination. The salary ranges from $950 to $1,400.

The position of junior fuels chemist is open to competitors over twenty years of age who have been graduated from a four years' course in a technical college of recognized standing. A thorough training in physical and organic chemistry is required. The salary ranges from $1,200 to $1,500.

For Laboratory Assistant.
To be eligible for the examination for laboratory assistant, a man must be over twenty years of age and must either be a graduate of a college that included mineralogy and petrography in the curriculum, or must be in his senior year. This salary is $1,080 a year.

The examination for copyist draftsman takes place November 8, and is open to men who have had practical experience in any line of drafting. A sliding scale of wages is paid.

Any applicant under seventeen, but not over twenty-one, is eligible for the examination of advanced apprentice draftsman. Mathematics and drawing and lettering are the subjects in which the applicants are examined. Eligibles resulting from this position are appointed at vacancies occur at a salary of $700 per annum.

Full information will be furnished applicants at the office of the Commission in this city.
